N.J. Court: the Second Amendment Trumps Gun Forfeiture Law

Belvidere, N.J., March 19, 2007—In a landmark written opinion filed February 27, a New Jersey Superior Court recognized the Second Amendment of the U.S. Constitution and held that a citizen's Constitutional Right to Keep and Bear Arms cannot be involuntarily waived under a New Jersey firearms forfeiture law.

"The recognition of Second Amendment rights in New Jersey is long overdue," said attorney Evan F. Nappen, whose law firm (including Richard V. Gilbert, Esq. and Louis P. Nappen, Esq.) represented appellant Dennis W. Peterson in the Warren County case (Docket No. A-01-07-2112). "In this appeal, the Second Amendment was applied to New Jersey via the Constitutional doctrine of fundamental fairness, overcoming a significant legal hurdle needed for the Federal Bill of Rights to apply to the State."

This decision coincides with the recent Parker v. District of Columbia case, in which the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia struck down a decades-old handgun ban in Washington, D.C. on the ground that it violates the Second Amendment.

"The legal significance of the Second Amendment is finally being recognized by American courts," Nappen continued, "and this New Jersey case is part of a growing trend in American jurisprudence."

In the New Jersey case, the appellant was denied re-issuance of his Firearms Purchaser ID card based on his consent to relinquish firearms seized in a domestic dispute in 2000. In 2004, New Jersey enacted a law barring Firearms Purchaser ID cards to any person whose firearms have been seized and not returned.

The Honorable John H. Pursel, J.S.C. held that the statute did not apply and the Firearms Purchaser ID card should be issued because the appellant did not know that his prior consent to relinquish his firearms would subject him to permanent loss of his Second Amendment rights under the 2004 law.

The ruling states in key part: "Fundamental fairness is a doctrine to be sparingly applied. It is appropriately applied in those rare cases where not to do so will subject the defendant to oppression, harassment, or egregious deprivation." (Doe v. Poritz, 142 N.J. 1 (1995), citing State v. Yoskowitz, 116 N.J. 679, 712, 563 A.2d 1 (1989) (Garibaldi, J., concurring and dissenting). Egregious deprivation would surely be the result if this applicant were precluded from obtaining a firearms purchaser identification card by virtue of the fact that he consensually surrendered his weapons at a time when it was impossible for him to have known that such action would later subject him to lifelong deprivation of his second amendment right.

"Additionally, it is clear that in consenting to the disposition of the weapons seized as a result of the temporary restraining order, the applicant did not intend to waive his right to bear arms as provided by the second amendment of the U.S. Constitution. He therefore could not have knowingly, intelligently, or voluntarily waived that right."

The Warren County Prosecutor has filed a notice of appeal in the case.

N.J. Appellate Court Conceals Identity of Judges Whose Rulings Are Overturned

In a Dec. 11, 2006, opinion the New Jersey Appellate Division reversed a Bergen County judge's forfeiture of firearms from a man who was accused of domestic violence, even though that complaint had been dismissed against him. (<http://www.judiciary.state.nj.us/opinions/a3764-05.pdf>)

The judge who ordered the forfeiture lacked a legal basis. Rather, he didn't "feel very comfortable" with the man having firearms. Here's a direct quote from the judge:

"See, the problem I have is Ms. Greco, who's written this letter saying that she has no objection to the weapon being returned, is also the person who's accused you of acts of domestic violence on two occasions, so my concern is I don't know how stable she is or if she's being coerced or threatened or -- I mean, it's an unfortunate situation and it makes me very concerned, and I don't feel, based upon the history of the domestic violence incidents, that it would be advisable to have the weapon returned to you, sir. I feel very uncomfortable. I don't think that . . . it's a potential general threat to the general safety of the population . . . especially in light of the fact that I don't know why anybody needs a weapon that shoots 15 rounds without reloading; and, furthermore, that there's a public threat involved because there have been two incidents of domestic violence. So -- and you don't have to be convicted of an act of domestic violence for there to be sufficient concern and legitimate basis to order the forfeiture. . . . Sir, I'm sorry. I'm going to order that the weapon be forfeited."

In case you're wondering who the Bergen County judge is who authorized this forfeiture, you'd have to file a records request with the Bergen County Court. The Appellate Division, as a matter of policy, does not identify judges who are reversed in the appellate decisions. However, they often identify and praise those judges who are affirmed.

FBI Abuses Authority (Again)

The FBI improperly and illegally used the USA Patriot Act to secretly obtain personal information about people in the U.S., a Justice Department audit concluded Friday.

And for three years the FBI underreported to Congress how often it forced businesses to turn over customer data, the audit found.

Attorney General Alberto Gonzales, who oversees the FBI, described the problems cited in the report as unacceptable and left open the possibility of criminal charges.

FBI Director Robert Mueller said, "I am to be held accountable. He told reporters he would correct the problems and did not plan to resign.

The audit found that FBI agents sometimes demanded personal data on individuals without proper authorization. The 126-page audit also found the FBI improperly obtained telephone records in non-emergency circumstances.

At issue are the security letters, a power outlined in the Patriot Act that Congress passed after the Sept. 11, 2001, terror attacks. The letters, or administrative subpoenas, are used in suspected terrorism and espionage cases. They allow the FBI to require telephone companies, Internet service providers, banks, credit bureaus and other businesses to produce highly personal records about their customers or subscribers -- without a judge's approval.

About three-fourths of the national security letters were issued for counterterror cases, and the other fourth for spy investigations.

In 2000 the FBI issued an estimated 8,500 letters, about 56,000 letters in 2004, and approximately 47,000 in 2005.

The FBI also used so-called "exigent letters," signed by officials at FBI headquarters who were not authorized to sign national security letters, to obtain information. In at least 700 cases, these exigent letters were sent to three telephone companies to get toll billing records and subscriber information.

"In many cases, there was no pending investigation associated with the request at the time the exigent letters were sent," the audit concluded.

Senators outraged over the conclusions signaled they would provide tougher oversight of the FBI -- and perhaps limit its power.

The American Civil Liberties Union said the audit proves Congress must amend the Patriot Act to require judicial approval anytime the FBI wants access to sensitive personal information. "The Attorney General and the FBI are part of the problem and they cannot be trusted to be part of the solution," said Anthony D. Romero, the ACLU's executive director.

-- AP March 9

Ed.: If the FBI director is accountable, as he says, why didn't he resign? If there were such a thing as accountability in Washington the agents who signed the illegal "exigent letters" would be indicted. But then the Waco killers would have to be indicted too. Not a good precedent for the.

DC Gun Ban Overturned

A federal appeals court has overturned the District of Columbia's 1976 handgun ban, rejecting the city's argument that the Second Amendment right to bear arms applied only to militias.

In a 2-1 decision, the judges held that the activities protected by the Second Amendment "are not limited to militia service, nor is an individual's enjoyment of the right contingent" on enrollment in a militia.

[According to the majority opinion, "[T]he phrase 'the right of the people,' when read intratextually and in light of Supreme Court precedent, leads us to conclude that the right in question is individual."

["To summarize, we conclude that the Second Amendment protects an individual right to keep and bear arms. That right existed prior to the formation of the new government under the Constitution and was premised on the private use of arms for activities such as hunting and self-defense, the latter being understood as resistance to either private lawlessness or the depredations of a tyrannical government (or a threat from abroad). In addition, the right to keep and bear arms had the important and salutary civic purpose of helping to preserve the citizen militia. The civic purpose was also a political expedient for the Federalists in the First Congress as it served, in part, to placate their Anti-federalist opponents. The individual right facilitated militia service by ensuring that citizens would not be barred from keeping the arms they would need when called forth for militia duty. Despite the importance of the Second Amendment's civic purpose, however, the activities it protects are not limited to militia service, nor is an individual's enjoyment of the right contingent upon his or her continued or intermittent enrollment in the militia."]

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit also threw out the district's requirement that registered firearms be kept unloaded, disassembled and under trigger lock.

In 2004, a lower-court judge told six city residents that they did not have a constitutional right to own handguns. The plaintiffs include residents of high-crime neighborhoods who wanted the guns for protection.

"The district's definition of the militia is just too narrow," Judge Laurence Silberman wrote for the majority Friday. "There are too many instances of 'bear arms' indicating private use to conclude that the drafters intended only a military sense."

Judge Karen Henderson dissented, writing that the Second Amendment does not apply to the District of Columbia because it is not a state.

"I think this is well positioned for review of the Supreme Court," said Jonathan Turley, a constitutional law professor at George Washington University. He said the D.C. circuit is historically influential with the Supreme Court because it often deals with constitutional questions.

If the dispute makes it to the high court, it would be the first case in nearly 70 years to address the Second Amendment's scope.

Silberman wrote that the Second Amendment is still "subject to the same sort of reasonable restrictions that have been recognized as limiting, for instance, the First Amendment."

Such restrictions might include gun registration, firearms testing to promote public safety or restrictions on gun ownership for criminals or those deemed mentally ill.

Health Q & A from Dr. Larry

Q: I've heard that cardiovascular exercise can prolong life; is this true?

A: Your heart is only good for so many beats, and that's it. Don't waste them on exercise. Speeding up your heart is like saying you can extend the life of your car by driving it faster. Want to live longer? Take a nap.

Q: Should I cut down on meat and eat more fruits and vegetables?

A: Think about it. What does a cow eat? Hay and corn. And what are they? Vegetables. So a steak is nothing more than a mechanism of delivering vegetables to your system. Need grain? Eat chicken. Remember, beef is a good source of field grass (green leafy vegetable). And a pork chop can give you 100% of your recommended daily allowance of vegetable products.

Q: Should I reduce my alcohol intake?

A: No, not at all. Wine is made from fruit. Brandy is distilled wine; they take the water out of the fruity bit so you get even more of the goodness. Beer is made out of grain. Bottoms up!

Q: How can I calculate my body/fat ratio?

A: Well, if you have a body and you have fat, your ratio is one to one. If you have two bodies, your ratio is two to one, etc.

Q: Aren't fried foods bad for you?

A: Listen up. Foods are fried in vegetable oil. In fact, they're permeated with it. How could getting more vegetables be bad for you?

Q: Will sit-ups help prevent me from getting a little soft around the middle?

A: Definitely not. When you exercise a muscle, it gets bigger. You should only be doing sit-ups if you want a bigger stomach.

I hope this has cleared up any misconceptions you may have had about food and diets.

26% of Younger U.S. Muslims Justify Suicide Bombings

One in four younger U.S. Muslims say suicide bombings to defend their religion are acceptable in some circumstances, according to a Pew Research Center poll.

The survey revealed a community with nearly as much happiness with their lives and communities as the general public, a broad willingness to adopt American customs, and income and education levels similar to others in the U.S.

Even so, the survey revealed noteworthy pockets of discontent.

While nearly 80 percent of U.S. Muslims say suicide bombings of civilians to defend Islam can not be justified, 13 percent say they can be, at least rarely.

That sentiment is strongest among those younger than 30. Two percent of them say it can often be justified, 13 percent say sometimes and 11 percent say rarely.

"It is a hair-raising number," said Radwan Masmoudi, president of the Washington-based Center for the Study of Islam and Democracy, which promotes the compatibility of Islam with democracy.

U.S. Muslims have growing Internet and television access to extreme ideologies, he said, adding: "People, especially younger people, are susceptible to these ideas."

Even so, U.S. Muslims are far less accepting of suicide attacks than Muslims in many other nations. In surveys Pew conducted last year, support in some Muslim countries exceeded 50 percent, while it was considered justifiable by about one in four Muslims in Britain and Spain, and one in three in France.

Eide Alawan, who directs interfaith outreach at the Islamic Center of America in Dearborn, Mich., one of the nation's largest mosques, said killing innocent people contradicts Islam.

Andrew Kohut, Pew director, called support for the attacks "one of the few trouble spots" in the survey.

The question did not specify where a suicide attack might occur, who might carry it out or what was meant by using a bombing to "defend Islam."

The survey estimates there are roughly 2.35 million Muslim Americans. It found that among adults, two-thirds are from abroad while a fifth are U.S.-born blacks.

Ed.: The communist era spawned a peculiar vocabulary in which words did not mean what the naïve and uninitiated assumed they meant. In communist jargon the word "peace", for example, meant the absence of war only in the sense that the enemies of communism had been totally subjugated. At that point "peace", a totalitarian slave state, would be realized.

It is not unlikely that Islam also employs misleading terminology. Many Muslims believe that non-believers (infidels) should be killed if they do not accept Islam. In fact at present Muslims are killing Christians in eastern Indonesia, Sudan and Nigeria. Eide Alawan, of the Islamic Center of America, is quoted as saying that killing "innocent people" contradicts Islam. The question is, does Islam consider infidels "innocent people", or are they (we) fair game?

Hammer the Americans hard enough and you forge the best weapon in the world. -- Attributed to one Captain Simeon Ecuyer, 1783

BATFE Poised to Destroy American History

Sgt. Alvin York, one of the USA's most famous war heroes, won the Medal of Honor during World War I because he led eight men who charged a machine gun nest and captured 132 heavily armed German soldiers.

For years, the machine gun his unit captured sat undisturbed in the Lynn, Massachusetts library.

"I literally tripped over it one day," the library director said. "That's when we got interested in finding out more about what it might be worth because we are trying to raise money for a library expansion. We thought it might be better to sell the machine gun than ask the taxpayers for more money."

The library's staff looked into selling the antique firearm, but they ran into problems because the machine gun was never registered with the federal government. It's now in an evidence locker at the local police station. A young Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives agent who had never heard of York or his exploits suggested that they melt it down, according to the Lynn Daily Item newspaper.

"Imagine destroying the German machine gun that was captured by Sgt. York just because it's not registered," a library trustee tells the paper, noting that they haven't had much luck convincing lawmakers to pass a special bill that would allow them to sell the unregistered weapon.

BATFE Killing Idaho's Oldest Gun Store

Red's Trading Post in Twin Falls, Idaho, is the state's oldest gun shop, opened since 1936. A 2004 BATFE audit revealed minor clerical errors. According to Red's, out of nearly ten THOUSAND firearms transferred between 1996 and 2004, the alleged error rate did not even reach 1%. Even the BATFE acknowledges these are minor paperwork errors -- there are no missing firearms and no willful illegal acts.

And yet the BATFE has revoked the ability of Red's Trading Post to acquire firearms for resale, although they're still permitted to sell the firearms in stock ... for now. But that's not enough -- the BATFE wants to revoke Red's license permanently.

Red's appeal was denied, and is now headed to federal court. They have spent over and $20,000 in legal fees in this battle and are now taking it public.

Red's Trading Post site <http://www.redstradingpost.com/atf.php> even includes an article about a competitor, Blue Lakes Sporting Goods, who was similarly railroaded. In an act of supreme hubris, the BATFE actually denied Blue Lakes the right to appeal until AFTER they were in the middle of a "Going Out of Business" sale!

Unfortunately, this is hardly unusual behavior for the BATFE. During the March 28, 2006 Congressional BATFE hearings, attorney Richard Gardiner testified that the BATFE's "enforcement" tends to focus on trivial violations that do not affect public safety, and that the BATFE imposes an unreasonable standard of perfection on Federal Firearms Licensees

(<http://judiciary.house.gov/media/pdfs/gardiner032806a.pdf>). This is especially ironic considering the extremely poor state of the BATFE's own record-keeping, about which they routinely perjure themselves in court (hear it from the mouth of the NFA Branch chief himself at <http://www.jpfo.org/rollcall.mp4>).

JPFO understands that enough is enough. We plan to bring this rogue agency to its knees with our upcoming documentary "The Gang" (www.jpfo.org/thegang.htm).

Throughout its production, we've received help from criminal investigators, historians, attorneys, BATFE victims, rock legend Ted Nugent, Knob Creek Enterprises, Unintended Consequences author John Ross, and many others. Everyone who understands the true threat to our freedoms that the BATFE poses owes these people a very big thank you. We plan to list these heroes in the Producer's Circle of the film credits -- it's the least we can do. And it's not too late for YOU to join them. If you want to be listed in the Producers circle, we need your contribution RIGHT NOW.

A donation of $250 or more will get you listed, plus you'll receive a free DVD copy of the finished film and a copy of our book "Gun Control: Gateway to Tyranny". Do it for Red's Trading Post. Do it for Blue Lakes Sporting Goods. Do it for ALL the victims of the BATFE's arbitrary, capricious "enforcement". Most of all, do it for yourself. Do it today.

Texas Steps Up to the Plate

We the people of Texas, both voter and non-voter, who are 18 years and above, oppose the following three un-constitutional laws. These un-lawful laws are brought forth by those holding office, Federal and State, including the Governors Office along with "non-governmental organizations" and foreign countries, Spain and Australia, that are working together to submit our nation into complete compliance under a parliamentary system.

We Americans are being delivered into harms way through these three areas that complement each other and strive for the destruction of our country.

1. "North American Union"

This union, finalized in 2005 by President Fox of Mexico, Prime Minister

Martin of Canada and President Bush, dissolved our nations borders, thus will subjugate we the people to a centralized foreign system. Hence, our individual sovereignty will be lost to the "North American Parliamentary Group."

2. "Trans Texas Corridor:

This highway system, which will consist of over 80 roads throughout our nation with the primary roadway running south to north through Texas will be owned and operated by foreign countries (Spain in Texas) and paid by you. The results are many including the destruction of both State and National sovereignty.

3. "Real I.D. Card Act of 2005"

Never in the history of our nation were we subject to such a tyrannical rule. The "Real I.D. Act" furthers the centralization of power thus destroying all individual and State sovereignty which is protected by our 10th Amendment of our Bill of Rights. [The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.—Article X, Bill of Rights] Thus the right to simply be left alone will come to an end. Whatever you do, buy, sell, travel, work, etc will all be monitored by an un-American agency, Home Land Security.

We demand that these un-American activities cease at once and we shall endeavor to bring those who are violating our laws to justice.

-- Texas Committee of Safety, (817) 783-2375

Tasers for Self-Defense?

Daniel Garza used a Taser model X26c to thwart an alleged carjacking, by "tasing" Justin Ray Atkinson on Dec. 17, 2006 in the parking lot at the Yuba City, California, Wal-Mart store. Garza, the owner of a security firm, said he has received 27 inquiries about Tasers since an Appeal-Democrat article about the incident.

Garza said he is definitely recommending Tasers for self-defense. He reported that Atkinson shook and screamed when the Taser's barbs delivered their 50,000-volt shock but recovered quickly.

"The Taser did the job," he told USA Today.

Tom King, owner of Sutter Surplus Sales in Marysville, said he was expecting delivery of three different Taser models, including a $300 C2 model that Taser International unveiled at the 2007 International Consumer Electronics Show in Las Vegas.

The C2, which comes in metallic pink and other designer colors, is not as powerful as police models but delivers a longer, 30-second jolt that allows the user to escape while the target writhes on the ground. King said he'll comply with Taser International's rules by hiring an off-duty Marysville police officer to teach customers.

"I think it's outstanding that people finally have a legal, less lethal means of protecting themselves," said King. He already stocks stun guns, which must be held against an assailant's body. Tasers fire barbs on long, thin wires. King said he held off ordering Tasers until reading that local law enforcement officials consider them legal for civilians to use. No permit is required.

Amnesty International USA, has called for an independent safety review. "More than 220 people in the United States have died after being shocked with Tasers. Imagine the devastating consequences when they are put in the hands of the average Joe or Josephine. Clearly, there are reasons for concern," the human rights group said. TASER International and police counter that coroners had not blamed Tasers for causing the deaths.

The Ranger in America

By Steve Snyder

There is a very large legend in American history – Rogers Rangers, and their exploits from upstate New York to Canada during the French and Indian war, the American phase of the world war between Great Britain and France which raged from 1754-1763.

According to the U.S. Army Ranger Association, though, units designated as Rangers and using Ranger tactics were on the American frontier as early as the 1670s.

Captain Benjamin Church's Rangers helped bring King Phillips War to a conclusion in 1675 and are the first recognized members of the breed indigenous to America.

Some 80 years later, during the winter of 1755, Robert Rogers formed a group of colonial militia from Fort William Henry into what was to become Rogers Rangers.

Rogers Rangers are well known, perhaps because Kenneth Roberts immortalized them in his great novel Northwest Passage. The book told of Robert Rogers leading 200 Rangers from Crown Point in 1759 all the way to the village of St. Francis near Quebec. There they raided the Abenaki Indian camp, burned the village, killed about one-fourth of the population and barely escaped when hotly pursued down the Connecticut River. A classic 1940 movie starring Spencer Tracy as Rogers is based on Northwest Passage.

In 1758, operating on Rogers Island near Fort Edward, the Rangers fought the famous Battle of Snowshoes or Battle of Rogers Rock, where the Rangers ambushed and themselves were ambushed, losing 125 killed and only 52 surviving.

Ranger Standing Orders

There are two versions of the Rangers Standing Orders of Maj. Robert Rogers. The first, rough-hewn version reprinted below, comes from Robert's novel Northwest Passage and has been used by the U.S. Army Ranger School since the 1950s. The second more polished version came from Maj. Rogers' journal and was intended for his Rangers in 1759.

1. Don't forget nothing.
2. Have your musket clean as a whistle, hatchet scoured, 60 rounds powder and ball, and be ready to march at a minute's notice.
3. When you're on the march, act the way you would if you was sneaking up on a deer. See the enemy first.
4. Tell the truth about what you see and what you do. There is an army depending on us for correct information. You can lie all you please when you tell other folks about the Rangers, but don't never lie to a Ranger or officer.
5. Don't never take a chance you don't have to.
6. When we're on a march we march single file, far enough apart so one shot can't go through two men.
7. If we strike swamps, or soft ground, we spread out abreast, so it's hard to track us.
8. When we march, we keep moving till dark, so as to give the enemy the least possible chance at us.
9. When we camp, half the party stays awake while the other half sleeps.
10. If we take prisoners, we keep 'em separate till we have had time to examine them, so they can't cook up a story between 'em.
11. Don't ever march home the same way. Take a different route so you won't be ambushed.

12. No matter whether we travel in big parties or little ones, each party has to keep a scout 20 yards ahead, 20 yards on each flank, and 20 yards in the rear so the main body can't be surprised and wiped out.

13. Every night you'll be told where to meet if surrounded by a superior force.

14. Don't sit down to eat without posting sentries.

15. Don't sleep beyond dawn. Dawn's when the French and Indians attack.

16. Don't cross a river by a regular ford.

17. If somebody's trailing you, make a circle, come back onto your own tracks, and ambush the folks that aim to ambush you.

18. Don't stand up when the enemy's coming against you. Kneel down, lie down, hide behind a tree.

19. Let the enemy come till he's almost close enough to touch, then let him have it and jump put and finish him up with your hatchet.

"Cochise County, USA: Cries from the Border"

A powerful film documenting the destruction of one border community in Arizona by the assault of the illegal alien invasion of the USA. Produced and directed by Mercedes Maharis.

A timely subject and controversial issue, the film documents how illegal aliens are infiltrating our country at an unprecedented rate, endangering our citizens, littering our deserts, and transporting drugs and criminals. "Cochise County" is a balanced look at the illegal immigration issue. It shows us the tragedy that people face when trying to cross the treacherous desert on foot unprepared, often dying midway, left behind by their parties. However, at the same time, we are led to an understanding that the ease with which Mexicans cross the border is identical to that of people from other countries. Interviews with Border Patrol officers tell us that every month they are arresting a growing number of people from many countries, including Iraq, Iran, and Syria.

This incredibly well constructed documentary does well not to politicize the border issue; rather, it forms a well-founded argument that our open borders are a national security issue that is being ignored by the government. The issue of illegal immigrants is a huge problem facing the nation today.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Militia Group,

The way things are going in our country is kind of sad. We have our Military troops being bashed. We have a President that is getting criticized just because he's republican. The problem is that liberals and the rest of the U.S. forget that we got attacked by terrorists September 11, 2001.

Most liberals have this hatred of George Bush because of this power thing. Do Americans want to fight the war on terror on our own soil? or fight an effective war and get the job done.

Since our elected representatives are not representing the people what you have is corruption in the white house. If you look at "45 goals to destroy America" on the web you will clearly see the enemy within that has an agenda laid out. And I fault every state Militia group for not stepping up to the plate and voicing concerns to the Sovereignty to the United States.

Our Nation is being invaded by illegal Mexicans, Islamic terrorist sleeper cells, and Militant liberal groups and liberals in elected office are letting it happen. The war of words between Democrat and republican, liberal against conservative etc will soon break out into armed civil conflict. I surely hope some patriotic group in America has the guts to Stop it.

NJM,

Is anybody interested in issues dealing with property rights? Local Nazis act as if they owned our land. They walk onto our land and tell us how we must live. Then they take money from us, jail us, some lose their homes, a few drop dead in courts. I spent 6 months in Mexico – they have MORE RIGHTS against gov't abuse. WHAT IS THIS!!!!

Gentlemen, 01 March 07

Hail and well met from the Michigan Soviet Socialist Democracy. How goes it at your end of "Amerika"? I hope you have been listening to LTR (www.libertytreeradio.4mg.com). The first promotional episode of "Battle for the Republic, the Radio Series" should be up on the air shortly. I finished the episode script and passed it on to T.T. [identity protected by NJ militia] and our music writers. The whole work is 100% patriot produced to include the intro and background music. The episode is part of a chapter from book 1 and is a sampling of the program which will run 22 to 24 episodes to cover book 1. I think you will like it.

I am finished with book 3 "A Dark Anniversary" and have now started to put book 4 to paper. I will finish book 4 outside. The supporting art work for the book is also looking good and like nothing done for the patriot cause to date. Some of the drawings just went to an art show in Chicago. We will have a wide range of posters and at least two calendars, 12 images for 12 months each, that will be very dynamic. All of the completed works are away from here. The book posters are done and will each be able to stand alone, yet as a group they complement each other. Keep in mind that all of the artists are ours and will continue to do other works for our cause.

Anyway, please remember that I will be leaving here in 14 days. I will contact you once I am home. I thank you for having sent me the NJM newsletter all the while I have been here. Many many people have read each one and it has helped to teach many. God bless and keep you strong in the fight. Your brother in arms and victory.

New Jersey Militia should try to get more into the public eye. Do talk radio, go on T.V. programs, FoxNews etc.

Now more than ever, with the left-wing politicians and the Islamic terror, we need the militias!
